Supporting The Mental Health Of LGBTQ+ Students During Uncertain Times

Wednesday, September 2 ~ 1:00-2:15pm (Eastern)

Once the live date has passed, this training will be available on demand.

Overview

There are a number of systemic challenges that affect the mental health of LGBTQ+ students. For instance, LGBTQ+ students in unsupportive learning environments lower GPAs, more absences, lower self-esteem, higher rates of depression, and less educational aspirations for completing a college degree.

Following the rapid transition to online learning for the spring 2020 term, a number of emerging concerns also appeared for this student demographic. Specifically, the most evident were concerns about well-being for students returning to unsupportive familial homes and increased rates of depression and anxiety.

As many institutions prepare for the upcoming academic year, we must recognize the challenges that the COVID-19 pandemic has presented for the mental health and well-being for LGBTQ+ students. As such, this webinar will help attendees do the following:

Understand the systemic challenges affecting the mental health of LGBTQ+ students

Recognize the impact of the COVID-19 pandemic and corresponding stay-at-home orders on the mental health of LGBTQ+ students

Consider ways to more actively support the mental health of this student demographic in the classroom

In regards to support in the classroom, attendees will learn about a variety of methods for inclusive support around mental health for LGBTQ+ students, and this conversation will include best practices for syllabus design, in-class and online discussions, and more. And finally, this presentation will conclude with a review of various LGBTQ+ affirming mental health resources for students in need.

Objectives:

- Identify systemic challenges affecting the mental health of LGBTQ+ students
- Understand the impact of the COVID-19 pandemic and corresponding stay-at-home orders on the mental health of LGBTQ+ students
